CHINA

25X1D

25X1D A comparison of photographic coverage acquired by Mission [REDACTED] with previous coverage acquired during [REDACTED] reveals no visible disruptions to the level of industrial activity in the following Chinese urban areas: Fu-chou, Hsia-men, and Nan-chiang. Six other Chinese urban areas (Shanghai, Cheng-tu, Ha-erh-pin, Pei-ping, Lan-chou, and Hsi-an) were studied on all available [REDACTED] imagery which gave evidence of apparent increases in most industrial activity. The latest photographic mission available, Mission [REDACTED] supplied no additional coverage of the above nine urban areas. However, a scan of all Chinese industry covered on that mission failed to reveal any industrial cut-back.

No significant disruption has been noted in those rail yards observed. Comparative analysis is currently being conducted in order to statistically evaluate trends in traffic density.

25X1D

Continued analysis of the effect of the "Cultural Revolution" on economic activity will be accomplished as material becomes available.
